Air emissions comply: Du Pont

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Current air emissions from the Du Pont, Delisle plant are reported by state officials to be well within permitted limits.

Wayne Anderson, DEQ chief of the air compliance section, stated, the amount of emissions on specific chemicals vary; some are every hour, some every three hours and some every 24 hours.

He added, when emitting chemicals, the yearly total reveals less information concerning area concentration than hourly amounts. It is within these amounts that air quality is protected.

Du Pont senior supervisor of safety, health and environment Garry Ruff reported the plant releases relatively constant emissions.

"There is no routine time of day when emissions from the plant are released," Ruff stated.

Anderson commented, maintaining air quality near a plant like the Du Pont, Delisle facility, usually presents little problem because of its independent location. The problem, he continued, is when there are more than one large plant within the same area, increasing the concentration of emissions.

Robt. Magee Auditorium named for superintendent

BY TRACI BONNEY
The Bay St. Louis-Waveland school board named a building, set a hearing and bought insurance Tuesday night.

The board voted unanimously to name the fine arts auditorium at Bay High School the Robert V. Magee Auditorium in honor of the retiring superintendent.

Magee modestly thanked the board. "I appreciate it; I don't deserve it, but I certainly appreciate it."

The board accepted a quote of $39,399 from Stewart-Sneed-Hewes Insurance of Gulfport for the district's building insurance. In addition to the accepted quote, the district had received a quote from of $39,601 Treutel Insurance, and a "no bid" from Hancock Insurance.

The Stewart-Sneed-Hewes quote is $2,800 less than last year's.

June 25 is the date set by the board for the district's annual budget hearing. The board is required by law to hold the public hearing before adopting the budget.

The school board trustees also talked about short-term loan needs for the district. After about half an hour of discussing what the district could and could not legally do in making a short-term loan, the board voted to advertise the district's intent to issue up to, but not more than, $200,000 in short-term notes over a two-year period.

Waveland resident describes attraction to car racing

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Five and a half days a week, Waveland resident and businessman Mike Ellis repairs cars for a living.

But come Saturday afternoon, Ellis steps into the cab of his flat bed truck, upon which a 1979 street stock Chevy Nova is securely tied, and off he drives to the races.

"I love it," he stated. "It is a way for me to let off steam. I enjoy the people and the competition. You may be surprised, but I find myself to be more relaxed after it is all over."

Ellis said many people look upon racing as a violent sport, when in actuality it is safer than driving to and from work every day.

"There are all sorts of safety precautions taken. The cars must have good roll bars, and the doors must be welded closed. The drivers must wear safety helmets and seat belts.

and fire suits. Fuel tanks and batteries must be enclosed in metal casings.

"Sometimes the racing gets so close you can't help but hit each other, but you are not supposed to. You will be pulled out of the race and may even be kicked off the track permanently if you rough drive."

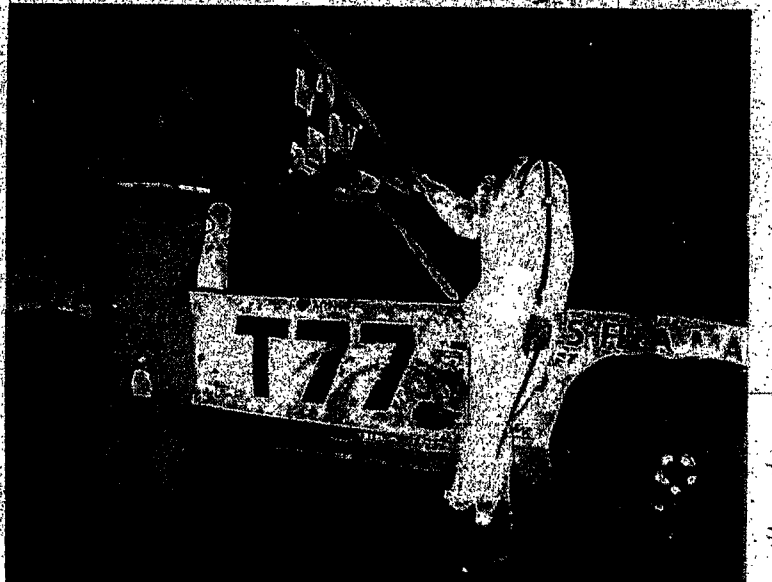

"You have to be aggressive, but the intent is to have fun, to compete, not hurt anyone."

According to Ellis, six years ago there were only two residents in Hancock County participating in the racing circuit. Today, he counts locally 17 men and two women, who actively race cars.

Local participants are Bay St. Louis residents Oren Lusich, Joseph Shubert, David Necaise, Owen Kosbab, Joe Necaise, Leonard Denning, Leo Asher, Leroy Asher and Tracy Davis; Kiln residents Roger LaCoste, Steve LaCoste, Catherine LaCoste, Bruce LaCoste, David McGill, Lynus Haas and Brett LaCoste; and Waveland residents Lee Tilton.

Adopt-a-cheerleader?

Squad asks to represent school; Bay-Waveland board says no

BY TRACI BONNEY
Cheerleaders at Bay High School were told something to the effect of "We'll clothe you, but we aren't claiming you," at Tuesday's Bay St. Louis-Waveland school board meeting.

Cheerleaders preparing to go to a one-week camp at Perkinson next week were concerned about something they heard: that they could not wear the high school squad uniforms and represent BHS at the camp because no school employee will be attending the event.

Alison Smith, representing parents of the cheerleaders, presented the board with the parents' views.

"We don't see why a teacher is needed, since the parents fund the whole camp," she said at one point in her speech.

She asked that the district allow a parent to attend the camp with the cheerleaders, and that a school sponsor for the squad be found as soon as possible.

She also requested that a new cheerleader handbook be printed, with all policies regarding the squad clearly stated.

When Smith pointed out other athletes have been allowed to use school uniforms, board member James Wilcox asked high school principal Roger James if that would be a problem. James replied if the board approved, he wouldn't object.

Trustee David Turcotte then asked if the squad had any sponsor. James said the junior high squad has one, but the high school squad does not. He explained a teacher had volunteered, but "she backed out at the last minute."

Trustee Gary Yarborough asked about a local camp. James said the school had tried to arrange one, but the cheerleaders chose to go to Perkinson.

Smith explained the cheerleaders and their parents weighed the options and decided in favor of Perkinson because the camp is a week-long event with a full day of activity all five days, and statewide competition.

"Without that competitive edge, our squad has no incentive to improve," she stated.

In addition, she told the board, competing at the camp gives the students an opportunity to vie for scholarships that would not be available at a local mini-camp.

Trustee Willie Bradley asked board attorney Lucien Gex, "At what point does the school assume liability?"

Gex said allowing a cheerleader to wear a uniform does not make the school liable for any injuries to that cheerleader or any damage the student may cause.

Yarborough's motion that the board take no action died for lack of a second.

Smith requested the cheerleaders be allowed to wear the uniforms and use the materials they needed in competition—sign paper, paints, pom poms, megaphones, etc.

After verifying that the school would not assume liability by letting the squad use the uniforms and materials, Bradley moved to allow the use. Wilcox seconded the motion, which carried with two abstentions. Yarborough abstained without stating why, and Penrose abstained with the explanation that she has two daughters on the squad.

Smith also asked that the squad be allowed to practice in the high school gym for the rest of this week. "The girls are practicing in someone's yard, a sometimes muddy yard, and they will be competing in a gym. They need to get their bearings in the gym before they go up to Perkinson," she said.

The board resisted the idea at first.

Penrose commented, "You let everyone else in town, in the county, in the state for that matter, use the gym. I don't see why you won't let your own cheerleaders use it." The cheerleaders and parents applauded. Her comment opened a discussion of the fact that the board has indeed let other organizations use the gym, as long as an approved person was present and enforced the guidelines.

The parents said they would make sure a parent was present at all times, and that the parent would report to James each day and work with him concerning times the squad used the gym.

Wilcox moved to allow the use of the gym; Bradley seconded, and the motion carried with a vote of three in favor and two abstaining.

The parents' last request, that the squad be allowed to represent the school at camp, was met with lack of action.

As discussion on the matter wound down, Penrose asked that a motion be made to make the same guidelines applicable to the junior high squad, for the same reasons as those stated during the earlier debate.

Wilcox made the motion that the junior high squad be allowed to wear their uniforms and use the needed materials and the gym, but not represent the school at camp. Board member David Turcotte seconded, and it carried with the same vote as the previous two.

Smith said afterward, "We are pleased about the issues that did pass, but we're disappointed that the squad won't be able to represent their school in name."

"...because they have so much pride in their school," Karen Compretta interjected. "That's part of the fun of camp, being able to go up from your school, with the mascot and all that."

Smith added, "I also feel that it (representing the school) could have been voted on tonight, and that responsibility was ignored."

The board also approved the hiring of a janitor, a maid, elementary school teacher Sandra Smith and high school chemistry/physics teacher Thomas F. Sumrall.

At Magee's recommendation, the board extended the school year for the period of June 16 to July 31 for special education students, and approved paying administrator Denise Wilkerson and teachers Linda Salaun, Ann Wainwright and Rebecca Montgomery for that period. This extension is an annual occurrence, Magee said.

OTHER BUSINESS

The board:

The board adjourned until June 25, 7 p.m.

Bay Council approves bids during brief recess meeting

BY TRACI BONNEY

A close-to-empty meeting chamber and a short agenda were the most notable aspects of Tuesday's recess meeting of the Bay St. Louis City Council.

Mayor Edward Favre, clerk of council Mike Cuevas, and councilmen Jim Thrifflie, Tom Farve and Charles Scianna attended the 45-minute meeting. Police chief Frank McNeil stopped by briefly with his wife, Debbie, to recommend that the city discontinue subscribing to the National Weather Service hotline now operating in the police station.

McNeil had told the council at the June 2 meeting that the National Weather Service was offering to update the office's equipment. The city currently pays about $110 a month for the service, but installation costs would range from $100 to $1,000 for the new equipment.

McNeil and municipal clerk Kay Johnson said at the June 2 meeting that NWS claimed the new equipment would save the city up to $100 a month. The council asked McNeil to check into the situation and report back at the next meeting.

So, when McNeil gave his recommendation Tuesday, he told the Council that both the Civil Defense and Sheriff's Department already have the service, so the city may as well save its money. The Council agreed with McNeil's assessment.

The Council also moved public hearings on property cleanups from June 16 to July 7; set a hearing for that date on a lot owned by Billy Burroughs on Main Street; approved city attendance at two vehicle auctions and an RTC furniture auction; accepted the mayor's recommendations on term bids and alternates for asphalt; approved the Crab Fest Twilight 5K and One-Mile Run July 4; and accepted the bid of $14,900 from Williams Paving in Biloxi for the Webb Street paving project.

The Council adjourned to June 16, 7 p.m.

Du Pont

from Du Pont to contain four regulated chemicals: hydrogen chloride, titanium tetrachloride, carbonyl sulfide and chlorine. The four are on a national list of 300-plus which must be reported by law.

Per hour, amounts emitted for these chemicals are: 70 pounds of hydrogen chloride; less than one-half pound of titanium tetrachloride; 650 pounds of carbonyl sulfide and less than one pound of chlorine.

Ruff added, Du Pont's permit allows up to 16,400 pounds of carbonyl sulfide to be emitted in one day.

DEQ chief of permitting, Don Watts, reported DEQ set emission amounts far below those recommended by experts in the health safety field.

A December 1991 "upset" caused the Bay St. Louis bridge to be closed to early morning traffic as a cloud of gases passed into the Mississippi Sound.

Ruff stated prior to April 1990 the plant experienced no significant upsets in air emissions. Since then, four or five have been recorded, the most recent in September and December of 1991.

He added, the plant has since increased its supervisory staff and has improved safety training for employees.

"There have been no problems these past months," Ruff commented, "so we have begun reducing the number of additional supervisors."

Ruff confirmed, within one mile of the plant, every home has been installed with a radio transmitted warning signal as a preparatory measure.

He said, "Almost all times, in a chemical incident, it is better to close off all vents to the outside and remain where you are, unless you have the proper equipment to chance exposure."

According to Ruff, chemicals, by nature, dissipate with air movement and are only dangerous when concentrated.

To Ruff's knowledge the alarm system has not been used in connection with any upsets or accidental releases. "They are tested once a month," he said.

Plants the size of Du Pont, considered moderately large, in addition to being permitted, must pass an annual inspection and provide documentation of maintenance of schedule.

Anderson stated, "The Du Pont, Delisle plant had testing as recent as a few months ago and everything was in compliance with their permit."

"An inspection is generally made once a year, but with recent modifications made at the plant, we have been testing more than once a year for some time."

Watts reported, an air permit is now good for a five-year period. At the end of that time, permitting must be renewed through application.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I have heard complaints from several residents of Longfellow Drive about it being the Unofficial Hancock County Speedway.

One resident told me the horror story of how his daughter's pet dog had accidentally happened to get out of their yard and was struck by a speeding vehicle.

The motorist hit his brake peddle for a second and again resumed speed. The animal had to be destroyed.

Now the accident was witnessed by the youngster who owned the pet.

The speed limit is 35 miles per hour on Longfellow Drive, but residents report vehicles doing 50 miles an hour and more.

I need not tell you about the sharp drop-offs and no shoulders on the sides of Longfellow in addition to being very narrow.

Accidents are quite frequent on Longfellow and there have even been fatalities.

Some residents have gone so far as placing 'slow' signs, and this seems to cause motorists to speed up rather than slow down.

I even heard that one resident is seeking a checkered flag to hoist since Longfellow Road is an unofficial raceway.

Traffic volume is very heavy to add to the dangerous conditions of Longfellow Drive. A portion of it is within the city limits of Bay St. Louis and the balance in the county.

Something needs to be done to slow the traffic down on Longfellow Drive or it will continue being the Unofficial Hancock County Speedway.

Our Lady of the Gulf is seeking contestants for Hospitality Queen of the Annual Crab Festival to be held July 4 weekend.

Contestants must be between the ages of 15 and 18 and will be judged on personality, church/school/community service, appearance, attitude and academics.

The person selected will represent the Crab Festival as Ambassador of Hospitality.

A sponsoring fee of $25 per entry will be used to help defray expenses. Just about anyone can be a sponsor for an entrant.

For further information, contact, Janet Aime, chairman, 467-2724 (day) or after 5 p.m., 467-7322.

Shrimping is a popular subject in the area since the season opened Tuesday.

I did see a lot of boats in the water, but not as many as I have seen in previous years.

My brothers Raymond and Clemence managed to catch about 40 pounds on Tuesday, and some were nice in size.

By the way, Clemence, who lives in North Carolina is visiting the area for the first time in 20 years.

As soon as he arrived in town he was ready to go fishing.

Raymond also enjoys fishing, so Clem will get his share in during his visit.

I have heard reports that the shrimp are larger in size this year, but maybe not as plentiful.

Guess I will try and get a trip in later in the season. I really enjoy eating shrimp and have not found a dish in which I do not like them.

I wish all the shrimpers good luck this season.

Linting is socially unacceptable behavior...

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Many alive today thanks to enforced speed limits

Dear Editor,

May I respond to a letter you published under the heading, "Abolish 55 mph highway speed traps."

This letter contained praise for the National Motorist Association and condemnation for law enforcement agencies.

May I repeat parts of their doctrine—the 55 mph must be abolished because no one pays any attention to it and enforcement of this limit is done only to receive federal dollars for the enforcement of this law.

The NMA claims that 75 mph is accepted in 65 mph areas and that 65 mph is accepted in 55 mph areas. They claim 80,000 pound 18-wheelers can be safely driven at 75 mph through Mississippi. This NMA that you provided print for asks that we do our part in the "struggle against the tyranny" foisted upon us by the federal government. We are asked to excuse poor people who have no money to pay fines caused by these "unfair laws which adversely affect law abiding citizens."

The NMA is proud of its intense lobbying to abolish the 55 mph limit at the national level. They refer to this law as the "ridiculous government regulation which produces a whole host of undesirable consequences." There is much more of this type of garbage in their doctrine, and it comes from the teamsters and the money trucking lobbyists who have "bought" the legislation that the motoring public is suffering and dying under today.

How can any organization fault the Mississippi law enforcement agencies for issuing 170 DUI tickets during the Memorial Day weekend?

Would this NMA care to consider how many people are alive today because of those 170 DUI tickets issued over the Memorial Day weekend?

We must all be thankful to these men and women in law enforcement who are our one big hope in avoiding the speeding drunken driver on our roads.

We must all respect the laws we have made and be thankful to the law enforcement people who risk their lives to protect ours.

Perhaps there are some laws that should be changed—but changed by us—we, the motorist public, and not by the paid lobbyists who prey upon every legislator.

May I also state that I called this 800 number you published, and you may be interested in the results. The number is for membership solicitation and information.

They do not accept any complaints, however, if you would like to object to any part of their doctrine, they will give you a long distance toll number that you may call.

Sincerely yours,
Allen G. Hickey

Waveland citizens' rights to be heard are hampered

To the Editor:

It would be very worthwhile for all citizens of Waveland to attend meetings of the City Council. It is a demonstration of how meetings of public officials should not be conducted.

The alderman who has the temerity to differ with the Mayor is gavelled into silence and threatened with prosecution under the new "decorum" ordinance.

Input from the public is only permitted by giving 48 hours advance notice, and then there is no guarantee that they can be heard. What is the Mayor afraid of?

was in office, he routinely called upon any citizens present at council meetings to ask questions or state their views on any subject of interest to city officials. Several of our neighboring cities regularly set aside a portion of their meetings to public concerns without previous notice.

It is axiomatic that the more unpopular the politicians, the more distance they try to put between themselves and the electorate. Let us hope that people of Waveland can take back their right to be heard without intimidation and censorship.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Natchez celebrates Spanish heritage

It was nice of Carolyn Vance Smith and the Natchez Literary Celebration to give recognition to "cousin" Stephen Minor, the last governor of Natchez district when it was under the dominion of the Spanish at the end of the 18th century.

I've never been able to establish any direct kin to Governor Stephen, known to his minions as Don Estaban, although in reality he was not Spanish, having been born in Pennsylvania. But as a lady here in Natchez who is a Stephen Minor descendant, put it: "All the Minors are related."

Stephen Minor's role in the history of Natchez came into focus last week during the 1992 Natchez Literary Celebration which observed "Spain Comes to Natchez," the period of Spanish rule 1779-1798 which had transformed the town into a major commercial and political center.

For the third year, this literary celebration, with a lineup of nationally recognized speakers, has become a cultural jewel for the state, attracting visitors from throughout the country to this storied river city.

It was the creation of Carolyn Vance Smith, coordinator of the English department at the Natchez branch of Copiah-Lincoln Community College. The celebration is sponsored by Copiah-Lincoln Community College, and the National Park Service's Natchez National Park and the Natchez Trace Parkway along with financial help from the Mississippi Humanities Council and lots of local citizens.

But back to Don Estaban, the Minor, the displaced Pennsylvanian who was governor of the Natchez district in 1797-98, the last years of Spanish rule before this area became part of the Mississippi territory.

From what historian Jack D. L. Holmes, emeritus professor of history at the University of Alabama at Birmingham and later director of Louisiana's collection of colonial documents, has written, Minor was an outstanding pioneer along the Spanish-American frontier in the lower Mississippi Valley.

Minor had found his way from his native state down to New Orleans around 1779 and was one of the United States volunteers to join the Spanish military forces against the British. Evidently he distinguished himself in the capture of Baton Rouge, Mobile and then later Pensacola, the last British stronghold in West Florida.

He was appointed by Spanish Governor Bernardo Galvez in 1781 as adjutant of the recently captured post of Natchez and became for the next 16 years a multi-purpose figure as interpreter, defense attorney, and official witness over property transfers and testaments.

When General Manuel Gayoso de Lemos arrived to take command of the Natchez district in 1789, Minor became Gayoso's right hand man in keeping peace with neighboring Indians. Historian Holmes says that Minor was the chief negotiator of the Natchez Treaty of May, 1792 in which the Choc-taws and Chickasaws peacefully surrendered their claims to Walnut Hills, near what is now Vicksburg.

Minor was picked by Gayoso to succeed him as governor when Gayoso departed to assume command of the Louisiana and West Florida provinces in July, 1797. The choice of Minor rather than Carlos de Grand Pre, Holmes says, was because the populace despised Grand Pre and accepted Minor.

His skill in steering a neutral course between the factions in early territorial Mississippi marked Minor's short term as governor, and after the Spanish forces left Natchez in 1798, he became a key figure in drawing the 31st parallel separating Spanish Florida from the United States.

Apparently Minor was also very good at making money from his innovative cotton, cattle and tobacco farming operation and acquiring land. According to Holmes, Minor owned large quantities of valuable Mississippi and Louisiana bottom lands, and at one time owned Deer Island and Ship Island off the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Although a slave owner, Minor never permitted mistreatment of blacks, according to Holmes. On one occasion he blocked emigration to Spanish territory of a local planter who physically abused a runaway slave.

He was a founder and president of the Bank of Mississippi from 1812 to 1815, when he died at age 55.

His summer home, "The Gardens," which Minor built in 1794 is still standing here, and occupied by Dr. and Mrs. Fred Gilbert Emrick, who graciously opened it for a luncheon during the literary celebration.

At a seated dinner at the municipal auditorium, in a facsimile garden of the mansion Concord, the home of Stephen Minor, local historian Dr. Elizabeth MacNeil Boggess with a group of actors presented "An Evening with Don Estaban," based on the lives of Stephen and Catherine Minor.

Concord is long gone, but evidently Stephen Minor lives on.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

Dealing with the waste

The United States Supreme Court recently ruled that the State of Alabama could not charge additional fees to accept hazardous waste from other states, saying that a state cannot construct "barriers to the free flow of interstate trade."

This decision directly affects businesses in Mississippi that produce hazardous waste since Mississippi does not have a facility which can handle the safe disposal of hazardous waste. Shipping the waste to facilities in other states is the only option. The additional fee on out-of-state waste subjected Mississippi industries to an unfair financial burden.

Despite the ruling, however, Mississippi must continue efforts to locate a safe hazardous waste treatment and disposal facility within the state.

The Department of Environmental Quality, through its Office of Pollution Control, is currently developing criteria for the location of hazardous waste management facilities in Mississippi. A Hazardous Waste Siting Committee, established last year, is studying potential sites for hazardous waste facilities.

These two efforts must not be slowed by the U.S. Supreme Court decision. Mississippi must become environmentally self-sufficient by developing hazardous waste treatment and disposal facilities in the state.

Should the federal government financially assist the cities of Chicago and Los Angeles with disaster relief?

"Yes. Better them than overseas."
Mike Hannah

"No, either one. Chicago, because of neglect. They knew about the problem and did nothing about it. And Los Angeles, the people who destroyed it should repay it."

Audrey Lukas

Chris Adams

F. Archibeque

"The Chicago area, yes. It wasn't the people's fault. It was the fault of one person who should have been able to do his job and report the damage before breakage. No, for Los Angeles, because the citizens did it to themselves. They ruined their city and they should have to build it up on their own."

Valerie Edenfield

"Sure, why not? It's a tradition to assist in disaster."

Becky House

West meets East

Russian cyclist enjoys Southern hospitality

By T. H. 'DOC' TOUPS

Last Wednesday evening when I stopped at the Echo office to pick up Thursday's paper, a Sheriff's deputy walked over from his next door office escorting a man on a bicycle. The man had an unusual request: He wanted permission to camp out behind the Echo building.

It was immediately apparent that this was a desperate and ill-informed soul. The little piece of real estate behind the Echo is a not-so-great dismal swamp, rumored to be home to alligators, piranhas and Iraqi submarines. The deputy, Nathan "Corky" Hoda, explained that the man was a Russian who was bicycling around the United States.

I was overwhelmed by a sense of patriotism and civic pride; we just can't have Russian visitors savaged by piranhas on the grounds of an American newspaper. It would cause the State Department all manner of grief and probably wouldn't help the county's tourism business one bit! So I invited him to use the couch in my living room for the evening.

My house guest proved to be Vladimir Kovalenko, a Siberian (who refers to himself as Russian) physical education teacher. Fortunately, we both spoke sufficiently poor English to be able to understand each other. Vladimir is an experienced cyclist who is seeing the United States for the second time. In 1990, he and fellow Soviet and American bicyclists completed an around-the-world tour. The four-man team passed through the U.S., but Vladimir found the experience limiting.

"After my first trip through America, I had good knowledge of America's road system and fast food restaurants—but little else," he said.

That experience in part, prompted him to plan a solo trip through the U.S., an odyssey which is now coming to an end.

When we left the newspaper office, I took Vladimir to the Rainbow Theatre Coffeehouse in Bay St. Louis, thinking that he might enjoy this more than a microwave burger on Hwy. 90. My intuition seemed to be correct; he quickly grabbed a guitar and entertained a small audience with Russian folk and pop music. No one understood any of it, and everyone enjoyed all of it!

Vladimir's U.S. tour is taking him through all 50 states, and his pace is more relaxed than the global trip allowed. In the Soviet Union, he explained that it was customary for "adventurers" to knock on the front door of the nearest home at nightfall and be immediately offered accommodation by the occupants. He learned quickly that one does this in the U.S. only at one's extreme peril.

When we left the Rainbow and arrived at my house, we immediately became involved in a serious academic discussion regarding the relative merits of American beers and whiskeys. This naturally involved the scientifically-responsible testing of the beverages in question, and soon our conversation took a more personal turn.

I am 35 years old. Vladimir is 34. By this definition alone, we are both children of the Cold War. What was different? What was similar?

His parents implored him to earn his diploma, even though he didn't enjoy many of his subjects and wanted to leave school. "It will show that you are smart and have endurance," they'd said. Voices from my own youth came flooding back.

Vladimir Kovalenko

His mother is disappointed that, after 34 years, he has yet to get married and form a stable family. In elementary school, I recalled A-bomb drills which found me hiding under my little desk after siren warnings. Vladimir didn't endure these but had an annual civil defense day.

He knew little about Khrushchev and virtually nothing about the Cuban missile crisis, though his knowledge of much of post World War II European history and the American Marshall Plan was undoubtedly more extensive than that of most Americans.

We talked into the wee hours about all of the world's problems and, of course, solved none of them. But that is never the point of such conversations; their success can only be measured in terms of new friendships after all the words are said. By that standard, we did fairly well.

Before turning in I asked Vladimir if there was anything he'd like to say in the newspaper. He seemed agreeably surprised by the request, so I directed him to my old typewriter and provided a sheaf of paper.

"That should I write?" he asked.

"Anything you wish," I replied and said good night.

Before falling asleep, I briefly wondered what he would write, decided I couldn't guess and expected nothing but to be surprised in the morning.

This is what I found (mutual rewrite for language difficulty):

"Only an intelligent person can realize how stupid he is. I hope that I am intelligent enough to do this."

It is 2:20 a.m. and I have this great opportunity to talk to the American people. I was offered the chance to be published in an American newspaper. What a deal! It's like being handed a live microphone at a radio station, broadcasting to the world.

In this situation, everyone would like to sound brilliant and say something historic. But it is difficult to sound like a genius when you are not, so I'll just try to sound like myself.

I feel this way when people ask me why I am bicycling around the world. Everyone expects an answer that they can understand and reconcile from their perspective; too often they do not understand that whatever the answer is, it may seem incomprehensible and unsatisfactory to their neighbor. You can be an unbelievably creative guy to one person and at the same time look terribly silly to someone else.

Anyway, there are 32,000 miles behind me and the discovery that too many people think about our planet in overly simplistic terms like: Cows give us milk because they are cows. Other parts of the world population believe that cows give us milk because they eat grass.

Both bodies of opinion are willing to fight to the death for victory. I hope the time has come to realize that cows produce milk because cows eat grass and also because cows are cows.

If you wish to keep yourself busy, think about why milk is milk!

Have fun.

After digesting this with breakfast, it was time to take Vladimir back to the Echo where he'd left his bike for the night. In the spirit of the thing, it seemed only proper that I take him back on two wheels and he had his first ride on an American Harley-Davidson.

He was deciding whether or not to spend another day in Bay St. Louis. Perhaps I could share a little cultural Americana.

As I was in the cast of the local little theatre production of "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," I invited him to our last rehearsal, before our last performance. If nothing else, I realized that viewing this "slice of life" depiction of America would cause him to disavow his countrymen from ever, ever entertaining any thought of invading us.

Since he comprised the entire audience, I sternly warned him to applaud at appropriate moments, or risk being forced to camp out in the not-so-great, dismal swamp behind the Echo.

In Soviet theatre, uncooperative audiences were merely sent to re-education camps and shot. This probably represents the single greatest difference between decadent capitalism and Godless communism.

After the show, back at my house, he entertained my girlfriend and myself with a cassette tape of romantic Russian music. We understood none of it... and enjoyed all of it.

The following morning, it was time for him to resume his trek.

I was not sorry to see him leave: Adventurers need their travels and his were not yet finished. Perhaps one day he will find his wife and stable family. Perhaps one day I will find mine. In the meantime, there are bicycles and motorcycles, good roads and bad—and adventure just outside of everyone's front door.

Have fun!

Digging around

Two NASA employees and 24 educators found the remains of a kitchen midden that dates to about 1400 B.C. during a recent Stennis Space Center archaeology workshop. Dr. Tom Sever and Dr. Marco Giardino led a dig at the Port Bienville Industrial Park, with the permission of Port and Harbor Commission Executive Director Harold "Buz" Olsen. Local teachers participating included Barbara Broyles, BHS; Sharon Mitchell, HNCE; and Malin Chamberlain, CEHS. Giardino said the participants found objects indicative of the Poverty Point culture; however, the site is almost 200 years older than the Louisiana site from which the name is derived. He explained that indicates the Poverty Point people may have migrated up the Mississippi from the Coast to the Louisiana site near Vicksburg. The workshop, Giardino said, was to teach educators so they can show students the scientific approach used in archaeology, "thereby preventing wanton destruction of sites for the sake of collecting pretty artifacts."

White-tailed deer mortality subject of research study

Stennis Space Center is one of 15 locations in the state chosen to participate in a research project conducted by Mississippi State University's Department of Wildlife and Fisheries. Termed "Survival Rate and Mortality of Adult Male White-Tailed Deer in Mississippi," Stennis was chosen because of the stringent hunting restrictions on the property. The center's involvement in the project is being managed by Don Bales, natural resources manager with Mason Technologies Inc. for the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant. Bales said the purpose of the study is "to determine the season and cause of natural mortalities in adult male white-tailed deer."

most of the range of the white-tailed deer in Mississippi, heavy exploitation of the male segment of the population occurs. Since very few bucks survive long enough to die of natural causes, little is known about natural mortality. Stennis Space Center Recreation Association and Wildlife Club are also participating. The deer are captured, sedated and then equipped with radio-transmitter collars to record their movement and histories. Hunters are asked to pass shots at collared deer this season, so that the deer can be extensively monitored. If hunters do accidentally shoot one of the deer, they are requested to call the telephone number on the deer's collar so information can be recorded about the animal and the expensive collar can be retrieved.

BMR seeks help in oyster relay project

The Bureau of Marine Resources started an oyster relay project Tuesday, and is looking for fishermen and boat owners to help relay oysters into Graveline Bayou.

Fishermen and boaters helping in the relay project will be paid $10 per hour per vessel.

John Cirino, BMR shellfish program coordinator, said the project in Graveline Bayou is scheduled to last until June 26.

Unloading days are scheduled for Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The relay project is scheduled to begin in the Bangs Lake area on June 27.

The relay program involves the dredging of oysters from contaminated waters and transporting them to cleaner waters.

More information on the project may be obtained by calling Cirino at 385-5860.

Fewer fishermen buy licenses this year

Fewer shrimpers are buying licenses this year, Bureau of Marine Resources officials say.

Biologists have projected a poor harvest this year based on sample trawls taken in recent weeks and on sampling of post-larval shrimp in late winter and early spring.

Recruitment of shrimp into northern Gulf of Mexico estuaries depends on ocean currents and winds during March and April. Late spring cold fronts and accompanying north winds may have accounted for the fewer numbers of shrimp moving into the Sound.

Shrimping licenses are sold from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at the BMR main office near Edgewater Mall in Biloxi.

Licenses will also be sold in the BMR license office in the old Jackson County Health Department on Old Stage Road in Pascagoula on Wednesday and Friday of this week. The Jackson County office will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

When It Comes To Auto Financing,

Honk
Honk

*Hancock Is Still Your #1 Bank.

During the first five months of 1992, more people in south Mississippi financed their cars and trucks through Hancock Bank than any other local or out-of-state Bank. More than the Credit Unions. More than the Savings & Loans. Even more than two of the big three auto manufacturer's credit corporations.

Surprised? You shouldn't be. Hancock Bank has consistently financed more automobiles than any other bank in south Mississippi since the 1930's. ## U.S. House downs boat user fee

Special to the Echo

The House of Representatives recently voted 339 to 78 to repeal the controversial 18-month-old federal boat user fee which affects 4.1 million boat owners.

The legislation approved by the House, H.R. 2056, phases out the recreational boat user fee in three steps. The fee would be repealed on October 1 for boats 21 feet or less; on October 1, 1993, for boats 37 feet and less; and by September 30, 1994, for all remaining boats.

Rep. Bob Davis (R-MI), chief sponsor of the repeal measure, estimates that nearly 70 percent of boaters now required to pay would be exempt beginning October 1.

BOAT/U.S. President Richard Schwartz, whose 420,000-member organization launched the fight against the user fee in November 1990 after it was approved by legislators in a closed-door session, said in reaction to the vote May 13: "The vote today is a clear signal that it is time to scuttle this failed experiment which has allowed the government to use the 'user fee' fig leaf to raise revenues without having to call it a tax."

According to a BOAT/U.S. press release, Congress has been awash for months with mail from constituents objecting to the user fee because none of the money collected — projected at $718 million over a five-year period — actually goes to the Coast Guard or to any programs benefiting boaters and anglers.

Many boaters reportedly objected to paying also because there is no active Coast Guard where they boat and because the Coast Guard has admitted that boaters paying the fee could expect no improved service, the release stated.

The repeal effort now moves to the U.S. Senate where the chairman of the Commerce Committee, Sen. Fritz Hollings (D-S.C.), has introduced a repeal bill similar to the one approved by the House.

BOAT/U.S. reported that the Hollings bill will build on the

1991-92

On December 8, 1991 the Soviet republics of Russia, the Ukraine and Byelorussia signed an accord creating the Commonwealth of Independent States. The document's first paragraph said, in part, "That the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, as a subject of international law and geopolitical reality, is ceasing its existence."

During the following year, most other Soviet republics would sign the accord and millions of people would be unshackled from the communist system.

The world would never be the same again.

The issue of Dockside Gambling remained unsettled after being approved in a close vote in December, 1990.

Gambling's opponents and proponents battled over regulations, sites and number of casinos.

The county's first license was issued to Bay Cove Marina (Casino Magic Corporation), which is scheduled to open Labor Day, 1992.

The Mississippi Army National Guard 1355th Supply and Service Company of Bay St. Louis and Ocean Springs participated in Operation Desert Shield/Storm and returned home to a hero's welcome.

Cookin' catfish

Mississippi product ranks as nation's fourth favorite seafood

Mississippi farm-raised catfish is a versatile favorite that is available year-round, earning praise from a host of chefs, restaurateurs and food lovers across the country.

As evidence of its growing favor, farm-raised catfish is currently ranked as the fourth most popular seafood in the United States by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

"Growing up in the South, I first learned to appreciate catfish as a regional classic that was traditionally enjoyed deep-fried," says Lee Bailey, the cookbook author and lifestyle authority who is one of catfish's most ardent advocates.

Indeed, the seasonally versatile farm-raised catfish from Mississippi can be enjoyed cold in summer salads, hot off Labor Day barbecue grills, warmly nestled in winter stews and delicately seasoned for spring morning brunches.

GRILLED CATFISH SALAD WITH WILD GREENS

2 Mississippi farm-raised catfish fillets

1/4 pound shitake mushrooms, thickly sliced

4 tablespoons virgin olive oil

2 tablespoons sherry vinegar

1 tablespoon fresh tarragon, chopped, or 1 teaspoon dried 1 small shallot, finely chopped

1/2 teaspoon salt, or to taste 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, or to taste

4 cups wild salad greens such as arugula, chicory, escarole, mustard and radicchio, washed and torn into bite-sized pieces

Slice the catfish fillets into one-inch thick strips and place them in a shallow dish with the mushrooms. Combine olive oil, vinegar, tarragon, salt and pepper in a small jar with a tight-fitting lid. Shake to blend.

Four two thirds of the dressing over the catfish and mushrooms and marinate for 1/2 hour, refrigerated. Grill or broil catfish along with the mushrooms for two to three minutes per side until fish flakes easily with a fork.

Cool to room temperature or chill. Toss the greens with the remaining dressing. Top with grilled catfish. Serves four as a first course or two as a main dish. May be served chilled or at room temperature.

PAN-SEARED CATFISH FILLETS WITH PARSLEY-PECAN SAUCE

2 cups all-purpose flour 1 tablespoon cayenne pepper 1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon salt

6 Mississippi catfish fillets, about 6 ounces each 2 or more tablespoons vegetable oil

2 or more tablespoons unsalted butter

2 cups Parsley-Pecan Sauce

Mix flour, cayenne, and salt. Spread it on a large platter and dredge each fillet, shaking off excess. Set aside on a sheet of waxed paper. Heat half the oil and butter in a skillet large enough to accommodate 3 fillets at a time.

When butter is foaming but not brown, add fillets and saute on one side for about 4 minutes, until light golden. Turn fillets and spread the browned side with sauce; continue to saute until underside is nicely browned, about another 4 minutes.

Cover the skillet for a few minutes of the cooking time to melt the sauce. Remove fish to a platter. Add the balance of the oil and butter and cook the remaining fillets.

You may reheat these slightly under the broiler just before serving if you like. Serves 6.

PARSLEY-PECAN SAUCE

2 cups tightly packed fresh parsley, leaves and tender stems only

1/2 cup olive oil

1/2 cup broken pecan meats

1 large clove garlic, cut into several pieces

1/2 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

1/2 cup freshly grated Romano cheese

2 tablespoons unsalted butter, cut into pieces

Place parsley in a food processor and process until coarsely chopped, turning machine off and on and scraping down sides. Add all other ingredients except salt, and process until mixture makes a smooth paste. Correct seasoning with salt.

Store tightly covered in the refrigerator. Makes about 2 cups.

Picnic favorites featured in Ole Miss 'Rebel Recipes'

"Summertime, and the living is easy..." Barbecue, and the cooking is, too.

Down South, barbecue dishes are crowd pleasers no matter what the season, but they are particularly popular choices for summer picnics. Whether you plan to set up a barbecue buffet on your patio or to pack the meal up to be enjoyed at the family's favorite park, barbecue is also a wise choice.

Two recipes perfect for summer picnic menus include chicken barbecue and barbecued pork sandwiches from "Rebel Recipes," the community cookbook of the Ole Miss home economics department.

The Following is a summer barbecue menu with asterisks noting the recipes included from "Rebel Recipes":

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Tomatoes, vine-ripened and juicy, are the main attraction these June days at our area supermarkets, as well as farmer's markets and produce stands along the roads—and at good prices, too. And, let's not forget the home gardens, either!

With those luscious Creole tomatoes on hand, I'm anticipating many a delicious meal as long as the season and the supply last. And, don't overlook the Vidalia onions and sweet Texas onions and all the others in the produce sections, at good prices. Pair the sliced tomatoes with sliced onions (and a sprinkling of green onion choppings) with splashes of olive oil and vinegar for a quick but superb salad.

Stuff a whole tomato with chicken or shrimp or tuna salad, or stuff it with shrimp or ham, breadcrumbs and cheese and such and bake for a tasty dish. All summer long I enjoy fresh tomato sauces on my pasta or meat or chicken, after the canned variations of winter. And, to make it even easier on the cook, I like:

PASTA WITH UNCOOKED FRESH TOMATO SAUCE

1 lb. pasta of your choice, as thin spaghetti or twists and so on

3 large, ripe tomatoes, peeled and seeded, cut in half-inch pieces

1 clove garlic, peeled and chopped fine

1 small onion, peeled and chopped fine

8 large basil leaves, washed, dried and chopped (or 1 tsp. dried basil)

1 Tbsp. fine-chopped fresh oregano (or 1/2 tsp. dried oregano)

1 tsp. rosemary, chopped fine or rubbed between the palms of the hands (or 1/2 tsp. dried rosemary)

1/2 cup olive oil

Juice of 1 lemon, strained

Pepper, salt to your taste Place the tomatoes in a bowl, add the remaining ingredients and mix well. Meanwhile, cook and drain the pasta, then sauce it with half the tomato mixture, toss together, then add the remaining sauce. Serve at once (4 servings.)

I like to contrast of the room temperature sauce with the hot, drained pasta.

I often prepare the sauce beforehand, refrigerate it, and bring it to room temperature before adding the pasta.

Other special offerings these days in the produce departments are yellow squash and green beans, along with eggplants and zucchini. Sweet and juicy canteloupes and watermelon sections, as well as whole watermelons, along with nectarines and fresh pineapples and strawberries are a feast for eye as well as palate. I like to serve orange sherbert or vanilla ice cream in canteloupe halves for quick and palate-pleasing ending to a summer meal. Canteloupe halves, brimming with chicken or shrimp or tuna salad, make an easy summer luncheon or supper dish; and, if you want to make the fruit "go farther," rings of canteloupe, filled with the salad, are also fine.

Chicken breast quarters are an excellent buy, basis for many an elegant "company" dish, and equally suitable for a quick family meal, broiled or baked, or fried as you prefer. I use chicken breast strips or chunks very often, in stir-fry dishes and in other dishes as well.

Center cut pork chops, along with quarter loins (sliced free) are good buys, as are the chuck steaks and other "gravy" steaks. And, those vacation time perennials, hot dogs and ground meat, are also good buys.

Judging was done by accredited judges of the Gulf Coast Council of Gar-

Four ribbons were awarded for posters which had some special quality or effort and which were not awarded any other ribbon.

The overall grand prize winner received a $100 savings bond from the Chamber, and the second place overall winner received a "litter grabber" from the Chamber.

Entries were received in four competition divisions: kindergarten through second grades; third through fifth grades; sixth through eighth grades; and ninth through 12th grades.

Bay resident serves aboard the 'Anzio'

Special to the Echo
For 23-year-old Navy Petty Officer Third Class Gregory A. Laureys, son of Scarlet Laureys of Bay St. Louis, Anzio had been nothing more than a chapter in history until he received orders to the pre-commissioning unit of the sea-going service's newest guided missile cruiser.

Now, after helping to build USS Anzio (CG-68), Laureys has learned some important new information about America's involvement in the world-wide conflict. The USS Anzio, named after the wartime battle of the same name, was commissioned May 2, 1992.

The Allied forces' invasion at Anzio Beach, almost 50 years ago, was considered a turning point in World War II. Only 37 miles from Rome, 40,000 British, Canadian and American troops secured the Anzio beachhead. But, after the initial success, the Allies were pinned down on the beachhead by a superior force of 80,000 German troops.

Through sheer bravery, the Allies held the beachhead for nearly four months. They suffered heavy casualties from endless bombing and shelling. Finally, with long awaited reinforcements, the Allies broke out in late May and ultimately marched victoriously into Rome, the Eternal City, in June 1944.

The Allies suffered approximately 25,000 casualties while the German forces lost 30,000 soldiers. In one measure of the courage and sacrifice of those who fought there, 22 Americans were awarded the Medal of Honor, the most of any single battle of World War II.

For Laureys, a 1989 alumnus of Bay Senior High, what was once only written history has now taken on personal significance. After meeting some of the veterans of the Anzio conflict that gathered in Norfolk for the ceremony, Laureys says he recognizes that the naming of the powerful ship of the line represents more than simply historical significance.

"Meeting the Anzio veterans was great; my grandfather was a veteran of World War II and I've always been interested in that part of history—meeting the veterans gave me an appreciation of what actually happened at Anzio," said Laureys, who serves as a fire controlman.

Laureys also received the honor of being named an Anzio plankowner. The honorary title is a tradition in naval history that dates back to wooden sailing ships. Members of a vessel's first crew were entitled to take pieces of the deck where they slept (planks) to commemorate the commissioning and first voyage of a new ship.

As naval forces continue to downsize as a result of the changing world scene, the capabilities of new ships like Anzio will continue to be more important. Although expensive to build, the more capable ships of the Navy of the future will be called upon to hold the line without the luxury of a larger fleet to depend upon as a back-up.

Anzio has a crew of 24 officers and 340 enlisted men. The 567-foot-long ship can steam in excess of 30 knots and is remarkably maneuverable.

Laureys will serve aboard the Anzio until August 1995.
